7. What is the Skills Development Levy (SDL) and what is the purpose?

- Skills Development Levy (SDL) is a mandatory contribution by employers, as stipulated in the Skills Development Levy Act (Chapter 306). It was introduced on 1 October 1979 to encourage employers to upgrade their employees' skills. SDL collections are channelled into the Skills Development Fund (SDF), which support a wide variety of skills upgrading programmes and activities. The SDL and SDF are administered by SkillsFuture Singapore (SSG).
- All employers are required to pay SDL. The amount of SDL payable is prescribed in section 3 of the SDL Act. With effect from 1 October 2008, every employer is required to contribute 0.25% of the monthly remuneration of every employee on their payroll subject to:
 - A minimum of $2 (for employees earning $800 or less a month)
 - A maximum of $11.25 (for employees earning $4,500 or more a month)

- Regulation 3 of the Skills Development Levy Regulations requires every employer liable to pay SDL for any month to compute and pay the SDL within 14 days after the end of that month.
- For more information on SDL, please visit SSG's website at <https://sdl.ssg.gov.sg>.

- All Singaporean or Singapore PR employees drawing a salary and with CPF contribution will be eligible for the SC/PR criteria, business owners included.
- Both new and existing employees can be considered, as long as they are Singapore Citizens or PRs under the company's employment, and within the qualifying 12 months period.
